Remembering Debbie Friedman, z"l

No matter how you think the world works, it is an amazing coincidence that Debbie Friedman, zichrona livracha, died the week of Shabbat Shira, the Shabbat of song. Going forward, this women's indelible contribution to the Jewish people will be commemorated at the same time that we read the Song at the Sea, celebrating the escape of the Israelites from Egypt and eliminating once and for all being pursued by the enemy Egyptians.

In 1975 I was first introduced to Debbie's music in earnest. During my high school years I learned many more of her songs. Her music was my music, her exuberance my exuberance. This was clear at her funeral that was webcast from Santa Ana, California, where she was accompanied into the next world with her own music. From "Sing Unto God" sung acapella by Craig Taubman to "Devorah's Song" sung by Josh Nelson to "Miriam's Song" led by Julie Silver it was a funeral both poignant and warm, energetic and elegiac. This is a woman who, like her namesake Devorah in the Book of Judges, transformed how thousands and thousands of Jews experienced Judaism. Originally an outsider, maligned by the cantorial establishment, her music seeped into synagogues from people who attended camp: it was too energetic to ignore. It was and is too good to ignore. No longer passive, Debbie's music was the opening to involve congregants in song.

Debbie was not professionally trained; her sound was influenced by the folk music she was hearing in the 1960s and 1970s. Over the course of her career you could almost hear how her thinking evolved, how the lyrics changed. As egalitarianism expanded throughout liberal Judaism, Debbie's music and lyrics reflected this. She was a wonderful teacher, a mentor, a friend, and a fierce advocate for what she affirmed.

We are diminished that she is no longer in this world in her body. Yet her voice continues to be heard, in her music, in our voices. Her memory is a blessing that we will honor every time we lift up our voices in her songs.

Judaism in Art: We usually think of Biblical commentary as something found in the Midrash, or written by Rashi or Sforno, but Biblical commentary comes in many forms including art. Please join us Saturday night February 19 at 7:00 pm when Rabbi Michael Cohen will lead us in an exploration of art as Biblical commentary. In addition to his rabbinic studies, Rabbi Michael has studied art history a number of times in Paris and Florence. Come and see how different artists' renditions of the same Biblical scene are also a commentary on that Biblical moment that helps us better understand the Biblical sentence or scene.

Talmud Study Class: Join Rabbi Novak at his weekly Talmud class, now being offered twice each week: on Tuesday mornings from 10:30 am to 12 pm and on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8 pm. Each class features a topic from the Talmud and vivid participant conversation. Come learn!

Israel Congregation has about 200 member families of diverse Jewish backgrounds, both full-time and part-time residents of southern Vermont. We provide weekly Shabbat and holiday services, a religious school, adult education, life cycle events, and cultural and social programming in a warm and welcoming environment.

An integral part of Jewish life in the Northshire for almost 90 years, Israel Congregation has been at its current location on Rte 7A, 1.2 miles north of Rte 11/30, since 1985. Our building is ADA accessible.

Religious School

The spring is starting to pick up speed as we continue to learn together at our religious school. On Friday, February 4, we will continue with our successful and engaging Family Shabbat Services. The b'nei mitzvah class (kitah bet) has also begun meeting for family services on the third Saturday morning of each month. This is a very exciting development, as we are focusing on learning the Torah service on Thursdays, and now with Rabbi Novak, the students can experience this important and vital ritual together as a community. Our next Family Kabbalat Shabbat is Friday, March 4, and then we will have Family Shabbat again the following Saturday (NOTE: this is the second Saturday of the month instead of the third Saturday). This month, we will also learn about the wild 'n crazy holiday of Purim—as well as the parts of the megillah that aren't as well known. Purim gives us an amazing opportunity to dress up, be silly, and also to remember the heroic story of Esther, which we will do together at religious school. Here's to a joyful month of Adar!

Spotlight on . . . Nancy Horowitz

As a young child confined indoors with the chicken pox, Nancy Horowitz gazed outside the windows of the Colburn House in Manchester—the inn where her family stayed for years starting in the early '70s—until her parents, long-time ICM members Bob and Micki, bought a house in Winhall. Nancy and her family continued coming to Vermont to ski every weekend throughout her childhood.

In 1985 the Colburn House became the Northshire Bookstore. And now Nancy's life has come full circle

President's Column: Diversity in Our Voices

Running Israel Congregation of Manchester involves more than just hard work. Thankfully, I believe we have structure and process—not incessant bureaucracy and red tape. The result is that most of the time we have a framework for getting things done effectively.

Much of our work is accomplished within our committees. Many of our committee chairs come together at our Board meetings to communicate their work to the Board, which thus helps coordinate the work done in our synagogue. We have a working Board which approves and provides guidance to our various committees. In fact, many of our Board members serve as committee chairs and every member of our Board serves on one or more committees.

Our community is blessed with a diversity of opinions, which are well represented on our Board. We often have discussions on issues which some Board members will strongly support while others just as strongly oppose or possibly hold the middle ground. Although these discussions can be very lively and animated, people fortunately maintain mutual respect and civility during these discourses. Worshipping, learning, and enjoying each other's company in the ICM community define who we are.

Our diversity of opinions makes it imperative that every member's voice is heard by our Board—not just the loudest voices. Get in touch with our Board members and committee chairs to express your thoughts and sentiments. All of their contact information can be found in our new Blue Book, which was recently sent in the mail to all of our congregants. (If your family did not receive the current Blue Book, please contact Karen Dreiblat, our synagogue administrator, in order that a copy may be sent to you.)

Share your thoughts with Rabbi Novak or myself. Please consider joining a committee and thus help get all the work done that faces the ICM community.

While you may not agree with every policy and program at Israel Congregation, your voice helps shape our future. Our ongoing participation strengthens our vibrant Jewish community.

John Sobel

Adult Reading of the Book of Esther

Please join Rabbi David Novak and your fellow congregants on Purim morning, March 20, at 10:30 am for a literary reading of the Book of Esther in English and homemade hamentaschen. In one of the most poignant books of our TaNach, God's name is never mentioned. The rabbis of the Talmud attribute this to hester panim, playing off the name of Esther (hester/Esther). It means that even though God's face may be hidden, the miraculous power of God is behind events as they transpire.

Yom ha Shoah Commemoration

We join together as a community for Yom ha Shoah, which falls on Sunday, May 1, this year. We will gather at 5:30 pm at Israel Congregation for a short ceremony, then we will caravan to the Rutland Jewish Center for a 7:00 pm performance by Robert DeCormier & Counterpoint—“Music to Remember: Songs from Jewish Life”—Part 1 “The Shtetel”; Part 2 “Terezin”; Part 3 “The Jewish Resistance.”

Please mark your calendars and plan on joining your fellow congregants to remember the victims of our people. If you choose to do so, the Rutland Jewish Center is accepting donations for this evening's performance. May the memories of all victims of the Shoah be an eternal blessing. They are not forgotten.

Simple Suppers Return

Simple Suppers are held on Tuesday evenings at 6:00 at the Barrows House beginning March 15. Each of the congregations that are members of the Interfaith Council of the Northshire take turns, on a weekly basis, acting as waiters. You get all the soup, bread & butter and coffee or tea that you want, and the meals are prepared by the staff of the Barrows House; proceeds benefit the Food Cupboard. Reservations by the previous Sunday are requested, but not required. For more information, please contact Micki Lisman at 362-4332 or msloane.esq@mindspring.com.

Interfaith Passover Seder

The annual Interfaith Seder will be held at Israel Congregation on April 6 at 6:00 pm. We have previously had a large turnout from the interfaith community, together with a substantial number from ICM. Come support our interfaith effort again this year. Everyone contributes to the success of the Seder. Each of the participating congregations bring one or more Passover dishes prepared according to recipes that we provide. The members of Israel Congregation set up the tables, prepare the Seder plate for each table and contribute more of the desserts we all love. We'd like to have a few members of ICM at each of the tables to help the others and explain the service. Rabbi Novak will be conducting the Passover service and Passover haggadahs will be distributed to each table. If you're interested in helping set up, bake and/or attend the Seder, contact Micki Lisman at 362-4332 or msloane.esq@mindspring.com.

ICM Reads Event a Success

On Jan. 15 participants in the ICM Reads evening went on a trip to the town of Zakho in Kurdish Iraq to meet the Jews that lived there. The glasses of Arak, food, music, decorations and slides set the scene. We had a wonderful discussion about the featured book, My Father's Paradise, led by Janet Kleinberg. The evening closed with a guest visit from esteemed story teller Mamo Yona Gabbay, Zakho's master storyteller (a.k.a. Harvey Flaxman), who entertained us with a perfectly delightful folktale in the tradition of the Jews of Kurdish Iraq. The library committee would like to thank everyone who came and participated in the evening.

Ski and Snowshoe Under the Moonlight

Just a reminder to mark your calendars for our yearly moonlight ski and snowshoe event, to take place this year on the evening of February 20 at Viking Nordic Center in Londonderry, Vermont. Back by popular demand, the evening promises to be one of adventure and fun. The moon will be just past full that night, and we're all keeping our fingers crossed for bright, clear skies. It's a holiday weekend, and most kids don't have school the next day, so bring the whole family. Friends and guests are welcome! The toasty warming house is ours for the evening so you can participate even if the great outdoors is not for you.

We will start the evening at 6 pm with a potluck dinner and then take to the trails, where we can ski or snowshoe until 9 pm on the 3 km of groomed and lit trails that range from easy to more advanced. If you do not have your own equipment, you can rent equipment from Viking for $5 per person. Come to ski/snowshoe or just hang out with friends. The cost is $10 per person with a maximum of $20 per family. For more information please contact Alison Hill at 362-7220 or Bev Rokes at 875-1371. If you'd like to learn more about the Viking Nordic Center, the website address is <http://www.vikingnordic.com>.

ICM Library Holds a Wealth of Self-Help Information

If you, your friends or your family are experiencing problems and are in need of some guidance, there are many Jewish sources for help. The ICM library has a section of self-help books for your use. Remember that you can take books out of the library using only the last 4 digits of your phone number. Below is a selection of titles from the library.

- Renewed Each Day: Daily Twelve Step Recovery Meditations Based on the Bible by Rabbi Kerry M. Olitzky and Aaron Z.
- Success: Bringing out the Best in Yourself—and Others by Rabbi Moshe Gans
- When a Friend Dies: A Book for Teens About Grieving and Healing by Marily E. Gootman, Ed. D.
- The Other Side of the Story: Giving People the Benefit of the Doubt — Stories and Strategies by Yehudis Samet
- Getting Up When You're Down: A Mature Discussion of an Adult Malady – Depression and Related Conditions by Rabbi Abraham J. Twerski, M. D.
- Studies in Jewish Dream Interpretation by Monford Harris
- The Business Bible: Ten New Commandments for Creating an Ethical Workplace by Rabbi Wayne Dosick
- Money: Jewish Choices, Jewish Voices edited by Elliot N. Dorff and Louis E. Newman

– with her newly published children’s book, “Nicely Dunn and the Lost Little Sister,” now available in the bookstore. For Nancy, the bookstore is filled with fond memories of the former inn and her early days in Vermont. “And now my book is there!” It is also sold on Amazon.com and the Barnes and Noble website.

In addition to her children’s book, Nancy is also the author of three yet to be published novels.

Nancy and her family have been members of ICM since services were held behind the lumber yard near the railroad tracks in Manchester. They attended High Holy Day services there, led by Julius Isaacs, who was instrumental in building the synagogue at its current location. “We have a long history with the temple.”

At a very young age Nancy became “very disaffected” with her temple at home. She loves ICM because “it’s so welcoming and the people are so warm.” Her daughter Phoebe, now 3½, whom Nancy adopted from Vietnam, was named at ICM by Rabbi Novak. “She loves him.” When she first brought Phoebe up, the members were “so warm – you just don’t find that.”

Nancy tries to come to Vermont twice a month, long weekends and holiday weeks. She loves to come to Shabbat services and the pot-luck dinners and attend High Holy Day services here with her parents.

Before devoting herself to writing full time, the author worked as a copywriter at an advertising agency in Manhattan. She was later transferred to Bombay, where she was based for three years and later spent two years working in Sydney, Australia.

Nancy spent a month in Vietnam going through the adoption process, accompanied by her parents. “The people there are such beautiful people and [Vietnam] is such beautiful place,” she enthused. “It was an amazing experience.”

Born in NYC and raised on Long Island, Nancy now lives on the Upper East Side in a cramped one-bedroom apartment with her boyfriend and Phoebe. She writes at home and freelances at an ad agency in midtown. For her, coming to Vermont is like a “retreat – with open air and beautiful people – it’s the ultimate balance to live in New York City and have Vermont.” She feels very lucky to have had the experience of coming to Vermont since she was a baby. Her parents, who still have the house in Winhall, live just eight blocks from Nancy in Manhattan. “It’s been fantastic. We’re very lucky to have them around and very lucky to have had the opportunity to experience Vermont because of them.” Nancy has toyed with the idea of living in Vermont. “I have a fantasy of living there. It’s such a creative place, with a lot of creative people – writers, sculptors . . . I think I could be part of such a creative community.”

Tu B’Shvat Seder Wrap-up

On Sunday, January 23, we held our annual Tu B’Shvat Seder at ICM, attended by about 20 people including some from Temple Beth El of Bennington. The Tu B’Shvat Seder is modeled on the Passover Seder and is a celebration of a new year for trees, vines and their fruits as well as the abundant gifts of the natural world. It also celebrates the renewal of our vision, our connection to our inner selves and to the natural world and its Source.

The Seder was prepared and conducted by Dina Bronson. It included the eating of fruits representing the four seasons and the drinking of four glasses of wine (juice) after reciting the appropriate prayers.

After the Seder a meal was served consisting mostly of food prepared from the fruits of trees and vines. The highlight was a bread baked by Dina depicting two trees with intertwined branches and root, a true representation of the spirit of the holiday.
